The Examiner's Statement of Reasons for Allowance appears to use a summarization of the language from one or more of the allowed claims. It is Applicants' belief, and the payment of the issue fee is submitted in reliance on this belief, that each of the claims was allowed based on the specific language in the claim, and not on a summarization of the language contained in the Examiner's Statement of Reasons for Allowance, and that any inconsistency between the Examiner's summarization and the actual language of the claims should not result in an importation of limitations into the claims that are not expressly recited in the claims. Applicants expressly request notification as soon as possible should the Examiner disagree with any of the foregoing. Absent such notification, each of the claims should be considered as allowed based on the express language on the claims, and no limitation should be imported into the claims based on the Examiner's Statement of Reasons for Allowance.

Respectfully submitted,

CLARK & MORTIMER
